BIOGRAPHIES

Berachah Valley is a Dayton-based bluegrass group who brings a true spirit of fun and tradition, along with inspiration that reaches out beyond the music, to their performances. The group performed in the movie "Mayberry Man" based, in part, on the history of The Andy Griffith Show.

Tom Archdeacon is an award-winning Dayton Daily News (DDN) sports columnist who has covered scores of sports names and their teams. He joined the DDN in 1989, and his stories currently appear in the Sunday edition of DDN.

Hal McCoy has covered the Cincinnati Reds since 1973 and currently writes the Reds blog. An award-winning DDN sports writer, he is the recipient of 52 Ohio and national writing awards.

Harry Bradbury and Larry Smith are running partners. Larry Smith was born blind, but he and Harry have run numerous marathons, including the Boston Marathon. Larry, with assistance from Harry and others, has run more than 75,000 miles, the equivalent of more than three trips around the world. In 1989, both Harry and Larry were inducted into the Dayton Distance Runners' Hall of Fame. They have a powerful story to share about overcoming odds.
